

At the end of lessons on Friday, Sam overheard something really odd. Some of the girls in his class had gone to Miss Hill to ask if they could play football. Miss Hill had said she didn't know. She would have to ask Mr Bond.

"That isn't fair!" said Liza. "If the girls want to play football, they should be allowed. You do football, Miss Hill, and you're a girl!"

"I don't play the game," said Miss Hill. "I just take the lesson for the juniors boys because there's no one else to do it."
