The first thing Jane does after giving up teaching is clean up Moor House.

St John, Diana and Mary will love what I have done with this place.

St John, Diana and Mary return to Moor House for Christmas.

Jane, it all looks lovely!

hmph.

They have a lovely Christmas together, but St John is in a bad mood.

So St John, what's going on with you and Rosamond?

Nothing. She is marrying someone else.

She decorates Moor House for Christmas.

Oh!

As time goes on, Jane feels uncomfortable around the cold, moody St John.

But one day ...

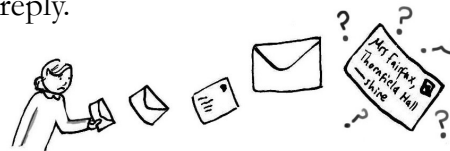

Okay.

Jane, I want you to learn Hindustani.

I wonder why?

Jane keeps thinking about Rochester. She has sent several letters to Mrs Fairfax, but in 6 months has had no reply.

One day ...

Jane come for a walk with me.

Jane, I would like to ask you something ...

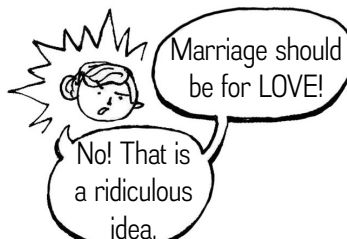

Will you come to India with me as my wife? We will do God's work together. God intended you to work hard.

But St John, we don't love each other! How could we get married?

Love doesn't matter to me. God is more important.

Marriage should be for LOVE!

No! That is a ridiculous idea.

St John is offended by Jane's strong words.

St John is then moody and cold to Jane for the following few days.

Jane feels like she has lost a friend.
